The inauguration of Gen. Grant at Washington to Grant.

The inauguration of Gen. Grant at Washington to Gen. Jackows was so great as to excite astonishment in the journals of the kind since the adoption of the Constitution, unless the swearing into office of Mesers.

Tyler, Fillmore and Johnson be so dignified.

But although there have been twenty inaugurations of Presidents, only fourteen individuals have been elected to the office, six of them,

Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Jackwall and Capitol. He entered the Senate Chamber shortly before noon, attended by the marshale and committees of arrangements, and took his east just in front of the Secretary's desk. There were present on the fidor the dignitaries of the one of the Galluries. At noon they all proceeded to the eastern portico, and the Presidents have died in office,—Harrison, the contraince of the Chief Magistrate into office of the day and a large number of falless. The Representatives were admitted to one of the galluries. At noon they all proceeded to the eastern portico, and the Presidents have died in office,—Harrison, the distribution of the concerns of people who came from the most distant parts of the country to witness the most distant parts of the country to witness the most distant parts of the country to witness the section had inspired a feeling of confidence through all sections of the ecountry which had not been the country which had not been the continued in the journals of the country which had not been the size of the day and a monup public men. This has taken tracti which we jublish in no ther sturm aloned onth by Republicans and Democrats it is there a proposed that the ejectors hold ward cancus o Saturday excelor next and nomings, can the lutes for Word offices, and deligates to a city onvention for the numbersion of Mayor

As to the relative stiength of partie the Reoblicans have substantial in coritics to both the trat and Second Wards, while the Third is usidered doubtful Upon a full vote the R publican majority in the city is about one him ired. Last spring, for the first time, party times sere drawn and the Republican candidate to Mayor was defeated - a result which was attrib-ited to the apathy of the Republicans on the one and, and the extriordinary efforts of the Deni erats on the other in behalf of a popular can The management of our city offers hould be at all times uninfluenced by political onelderations, and it the spirit of this recomsendation is practically observed, it can scarcely sil to receive the general public approbation

Charter Election

We the uffdersigned, Democrats and Republi ans, would respectfully recommend that the pproaching election for city officers be con ucted without reference to party divisions, and but candidates for the several offices be selected a the score of personal fitness, irrespective of acic political associations. Such a course while bytating a political contest, will, we believe, be sore conclusive to the interests of our thriving ity and more acceptable to the mass of our cople

Business Prospects for the Year It is estimated that the (ston crop now being marketed is one of the birgest ever raised or that it will amount to 2 500 000 bales, or $5.00 000 000 Besides this immense, sum to be di vided among the planters, that so . . . 1 in a produced largely of corn and wheat. The in crease of the money to circulation at the South will taske them large producers of domestic and foreign manufactures. The recent attempt by speculators to earry up the price of middling cotton has culminated and the price is now dr chains, and buye a are spareing in their pur-chases of cotton goods. A healthy trade may be anti insted for the country the country year based on the cotton frop, and a surplus of grain and food for foreign countries. An nausual foreign dessand must result from the drought in Europe of list year and from the light punting of a cotton crop in India, owing to the fam ine in that country during the same period. The
